Opening day of Latrun Highway to Jerusalem after 19 Years. Cover has four different postmarks. First is Ramla, Second is Nahal Ayyalon . Third is Jerusalem and Fourth Jerusalem. SIX DAY WAR COVERS

*Latrun bulge now open to traffic
after 19 years*

The Jerusalem Corridor has ceased to exist as of today, Labour Minister Yigal Allon said yesterday as he cut the tape for the formal reopening to traffic of the Latrun bulge on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway, which has been closed for 19 years.

Mr. Allon said that Latrun had been a symbol of "an unfinished job" ever since 1948. At the time, the Israel Defense Forces were strong enough to open the Latrun road and take the Old City of Jerusalem, he said. "But political considerations — which I thought were unfounded in those days — prevented us from finishing the job until the Six-Day War," said Mr. Allon.

(In the summer of 1948, Latrun and the Ayalon valley which it controls were the site of a bitter battle during which hundreds of Israeli soldiers were killed and wounded. The plan to take Latrun and the northern approaches of the Jerusalem corridor to which Mr. Allon referred was ready only towards the end of the War of Independence.)

The Latrun stretch of road, which is 10 km. long and six metres wide, will take vehicles under four tons only. Trucks and buses will still have to take the Samson detour, which adds about 11 km. to the journey. (Itim)

Recently I discovered an FDC of Chain Nachman Blaik issued July 22, 1954. An interesting phenomenon is the symbol of the Israel Post—"The Running Stag". I note, however, that this stag is running in the opposite direction to the one always found on all other covers.

Upon examination we find that this is not an offset, but is actually imprinted. Have any of our readers come across a similar situation or can you explain this phenomenon?

Peace be with you.

The cachet on this cover takes one backward into history almost 2000 years—it was on this date, June 14 this year, that Jerusalem once more became united under Jewish control after centuries of being a divided city.

PHILATELY

On June 5—the day the Israelis occupied Khan Younis—an alert philatelist hastily prepared a few first day occupation covers and had them duly serviced with captured postmarking devices. He later added a suitable cachet.

Captives On The Great Bitter Lake

In the recent issues of the IP, I read pro and con in reference of the 6 day War material. I myself collect everything connected with Jewish history, the Six Day War will play a great role in Jewish history equal to the Exodus from Egypt. Here is another philatelic phase of that War. June 5, 1967 fourteen ships of eight nations, three of them Iron Curtain countries, rode at anchor between Asia and Africa following Egypt's blockade at both entrances to the canal. They were trapped and could not leave. The stranded ships are: M/S Blesaw Beirut, S.S. African Glen, M/S Münsterland, M/V Scottish Star, M/S Killara, M/S Djakarta, H.M.S. Port Invercargill, M/S Nippon, Sindh, Melampus, Agapenor, M/V Vasil Levski, M/S Northwind and M/S Lednice.

The men formed the "Great Bitter Lake Association" naming as President Capt. James Starkey of the English freighter Port Invercargill. The sailors designed their own postage stamp which you see reproduced on the covers below. It was used on mail forwarded by the Red Cross and the U.N. to the normal U.P.U. channels.

LINN'S STAMPS

Locals of Great Bitter Lake

By Sid Pietzsch

Egypt's intention to reopen the Suez Canal on June 5 opens a new stage in the century-old history of a desert ditch that has contributed much lore to the Cinderella field.

Whether we are discussing the 1869 issue of stamps for the convenience of workers on the waterway itself or the locals produced to combat boredom of sailors trapped in Great Bitter Lake by the 1967 Israeli blitz-war, there are wide areas of dispute and not much that can add to a poor man's collection.

Nothing, that is, except a few good stories.

The canal itself took over a decade to complete after the French-owned company first began to dig on April 25, 1858, and it was during the later stages of construction that four values picturing a three-masted vessel with a single smokestack were lithographed in Paris by the company to carry mails up and down the uncompleted channel.

Just how long these labels were in use is a matter for dispute. Egyptian authorities took a dim view of them immediately, and there are reports they were withdrawn less than a month after their introduction July 19, 1868.

However, company records show they were not demonetized until huge unused stocks were remaindered to the public on April 23 of the following year.

As a matter of fact, few covers survive and most of them are suspect. There are plenty of unused copies around including more than a dozen forgeries, most of which are easily recognized by the crude vertical lines in the shading between the "Postes" tablet and an oval frame bearing the French inscription "Canal Maritime de Suez."

Over the years no steamship local has enjoyed such attention from the duplicators, and there are few Cinderella collections without some form of the Suez label though a recent auction by the London Cinderella club contained few, if any, such examples.

The Williams Brothers, well-known British experts, classify covers bearing the adhesives as "extremely rare" and disagree with others about the postmarks.

There is an auction report in the "Cinderella Philatelist" for October 1968 in which pairs and blocks (one of 12 stamps "with small stains and creases") went for prices of from 24 to 200 pounds sterling each.

An even lustier career appears in prospect for the labels produced by seamen trapped in Great Bitter Lake, which is one of the four dried up depressions through which the original channel was dredged by the French more than a century ago.

In 1967 Israeli soldiers swooped through the Gaza desert and sealed off both ends of the 100-mile-long waterway trapping a number of European steamers inside the largest lake. Round-the-clock duty was imposed on the crews to keep the vessels seaworthy despite the inaction.

To combat monotony, one commander (some say it was a Czech named Capt. Kudrna) produced a few definitives and commemoratives on the ship's duplicator for souvenir use on homeward-bound mail.

Once again Egyptian authorities took a dim view of the project, and since it was through that postal system that transit was provided to the outside world, very few covers with labels attached survived.

However, there must have been at least one individual with a philatelic gleam in his eye, for some examples with ship markings and proper labels reached a German stamp dealer, and the scheme enjoyed a flash of publicity in the philatelic press during 1970.

An effort by the editor of "Egyptian Topics" and a New York collector to obtain copies either of the stamps or covers proved fruitless.

However, the collector did receive an offer from Germany of 35 covers, nine souvenir sheets and one commemorative card for a price of over $600 U.S.

Failure of adequate supplies at reasonable prices to appear exposed the scheme and five years have now passed without any major effort to take advantage of the situation, even though each quarter a lonely classified ad appears in the "Cinderella Philatelist" offering to purchase any and all examples from Great Bitter Lake.

Today the whole story lies quiet. There has been little or no follow-up and if there is either a genuine or fraudulent supply of Bitter Lake labels, it is safely in hiding.

A single cover bearing ship markings and processed through the Egyptian postal system appeared on the market last year. It had been purchased by a Dallas dealer in England. It bore none of the publicized labels.

Now that the lakes are cleared and the giant waterway prepares to reopen, a new development could be in prospect. It might also be interesting.

FIRST MAIDEN TRIP TO THE NORTHERN SHORES OF THE SEA OF GALILEE WHERE THE JORDAN RIVER
FLOWS INTO LAKE TIBERIAS 29.6.1967 טפנ' הירדן 29-6-67

'Fatah-land' comprises area of 70 square kilometres

Jerusalem Post Military Correspondent

Over 70 sq. km. of Lebanese territory of what the army calls "Fatahland" — the wedge of territory east of the Hasbani River and including the south-western foothills of the lower Hermon range — were occupied by the Israel army's multi-pronged mopping-up operation against the terrorist gangs yesterday.

The undertaking was defined here as a major police-action, the 10th launched by the army into Lebanon since the Six Day War.

Much of the area consists of extremely difficult mountainous terrain, which appreciably slowed down the advance of the Israeli units.

About 6,000 civilians live in the area, in six villages and about 12 hamlets. Every effort was made to prevent civilian casualties, including an early morning leaflet raid over the entire area. Later, curfews were imposed on the occupied villages.

The attack was predictable, following the unprecedented increase in terrorist activities reported from the Lebanese border since April 1. There were a total of 61 incidents directed against 22 civilian settlements in Central, Western and Upper Galilee. During the past 10 days seven Israeli citizens lost their lives and over a score were wounded.

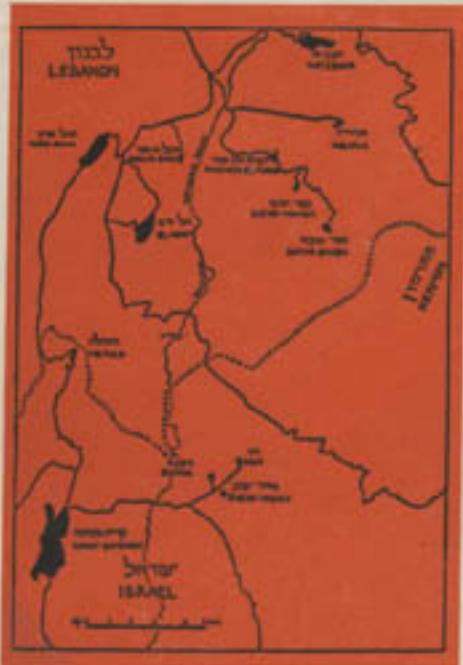

The 61 attacks (within 40 days) included six Katyusha bombardments, eight mortar bombardments, eight acts of sabotage, 10 mining incidents and 29 attacks with automatic weapons and bazookas on traffic in the area.

Kiryat Shmona suffered five Katyusha bombardments, three of them last week.

In most of the incidents, the terrorists fired from across the Lebanese border. This was, amongst other things, in violation of the Cairo Agreement which promised the terrorists freedom of movement in Lebanon and across the border into Israel but not operations out of Lebanese territory.

When the terrorists further increased the frequency of their raids last week, it became clear that Zahal would be left with no alternative but to embark on a mopping-up operation inside Lebanese territory. There were two possible means of doing this — either by an airborne operation involving the landing of troops to the rear of the terrorists (similar to the Karameh raid) and a roundup of terrorists, or by a systematic advance to destroy all the terrorist hideouts, their arms stores and military installations.

The only way to stop the gangs permanently would admittedly be to turn entire the area into a no-man's-land, which Israel is reluctant to do.
